

BUILDING ACCEPTANCE OF DIVERSITY

While new and different groups of societies grow and expand in our changing world, we can still lag behind in our understanding of Race, Ethnicity and Gender diversity in this 21st Century. It is hoped that through this interactive Evergreen Forum course, and through an ensuing deeper understanding, perhaps we can bring about more acceptance of the differences among us.

Each session of this four-week course will commence with invited guests who can share their experiences and knowledge of Black Americans, particularly those from Princeton, and Native Americans. Sessions will also include Muslims from the Middle East, a descendant of immigrants from China, and immigrants from Latin American countries. The final session brings together members of the LGBTQ community to help us explore their diverse adaptations to gender changes.

The course always includes discussion amongst and between students in the class and guests. It is intended to be highly interactive as last year's class proved to be. Everyone has a voice.

Leader: Joan Goldstein, is a PhD Research Sociologist, author of books and articles, long time educator, and Host/Producer of "Back Story with Joan Goldstein", a TV series with Princeton TV30.

Thursdays: 10:00 a.m. to 12 noon, 4 weeks: March 1 through March 22

Location: PSRC